

The Rebel Speaks

GOVERNMENT ANTAGONIST AND HUGENOT

I was watching a program on channel eleven (OETA) here in Oklahoma and it was a program about heritages. Harry Connick, Jr. was a guest and the subject was a member of his family who had served with a Southern cavalry unit during the War of the Secession (northerners call it the Civil War). Low and behold, there, in front of his black interviewer, he expresses his shame for this much braver member of his family than he! I am ashamed for this fallen Southern hero, for his socialist descendent. This kind of attitude shows how the hundred and fifty years of the North controlling our lives and hiding the truth by brain washing our children in their government schools is now beyond outrageous ignorance; it is subversion of our culture in the South. We are also talking about the same government that, when done raping the Confederacy and burning it to the ground, turned itself loose on the American Indian with genocide on its mind!

You know, Harry, Jr, you need to get that load of crap out of your mind and do some historical research yourself. What you will find is that it (War of the Secession) wasn't over slavery at all - that was just their excuse! In reality, it was over economics, you moron! The South was in such an economic stance as to no longer depend on trade with the North totally, due to Southern trade agreements with England, France and other powerful countries, thereby taking trade out of Northern ports and into Southern ones! Slavery was already being legislated out of Southern states, being recognized as a drawback when doing business with our new trading partners - and would have been done away with anyway! It was and always has been about money. That is what all wars are ultimately about!

Don't believe me? Then get out that old world history book and do a little reading! You see, we, here in the South and - in particular - Indian Territory, know better than any about when the victor writes and then presses his version of what happened. In Nazi Germany they called it propaganda.

It's kind of funny that people think that the South was fighting to keep slavery. In reality, most soldiers fighting for the South thought they were fighting off an invasion and never owned a slave!

And, by the way, Northerners owned slaves, too, and were

D-Day June 6, 1944

"Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped, and battle-hardened. He will fight savagely....The free men of the world are marching together to victory. I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty, and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full victory."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, June 1944

very reluctant to let them go. You never hear that, do you? Not to mention the "Jim Crow" law was designed by Northern politicians in the Democratic party in order to control their new -found flock of voters! How about this for thought: Lincoln suspended Habeas Corpus in order to wage an illegal war on a sovereign nation. And that, my friend, is usurpation! And he is idolized as a representation of freedom everywhere. Whereas the man who shot him, a member of the militia of his country, is called an assassin!

No, Harry, I'm ashamed of you! Ashamed that you don't even understand your own homeland. It's easy not to ask real questions and just take the word of someone else.

There are veterans from both sides in my family... some generals, some privates. All with courage and bravery you and I will never know! So, who should I be ashamed of? Which one shall I be embarrassed of? Where is your red badge of courage, Harry?

Time, again, to ride! This old Reb smells a pole cat!!!

See you on the bridge!

P.S. Revere the courageous and honor the brave. And to those who are ashamed, shame upon their cowardly souls! I am ashamed to call you my countryman!
