GOVERNMENT ANTAGONIST AND HUGUENOT

By golly, you did it! My hat is off to the 55% of voters in Tulsa who can tell when they are being conned by Obama's concubine! To the other 45%, the "lost," I say... stupid is as stupid does!! But, they are also the kind of people who walk away when they see someone in need or maybe dying by the side of the road.

Many years ago, before marriage and children, I drove a delivery van for Scott Rice. I was sitting in my van looking at my delivery schedule, while sitting in front of old City Hall. There was a hard hitting sound nearby. I looked, but didn't see anything at first. Thinking it must have been something from a P.S.O. crew working in the alley behind me! A police car traveling down Fourth suddenly stopped and did a U-turn and pulled up next to the Kennedy Building on the opposite side of the street. There, on the sidewalk, lay a man that had just fallen seven stories from a window-washing scaffold. His partner there hanging on for dear life as the scaffold had dropped at one end... dangling precariously from the other.

On his way off the downward end of the platform, he had somehow caught his left arm on something, almost ripping it completely off. I rushed into the old City Hall building and told them to call an ambulance. I then rushed back outside and across the street. The police officer, by himself, had a tourniquet on the man's arm. I said, "What do you want me to do?" He said, "Hold this and don't let him up," as he was still conscious, but in shock. The policeman went to call a fire truck and ladder, and emergency responders on his radio. A young woman came up to help me. She was dressed in a white dress, with black hair and piercing blue eyes, I believe. Beautiful, like an angel from above. There on the corner, watching with the rest of the stander-byers, was my then brother-in-law. I watched as he turned and walked away, not wanting to involve himself. I knew what was going on in the minds of the other dweebs. But, by own brother-in-law?

The man hanging from hanging from the defunked platform made his way onto a window ledge, where he was rescued by the firemen with a ladder truck. The man who hit the sidewalk, fortunately, survived his grave injuries. I am fortunate to have helped him stay alive. I never knew who that angel was, but I am embarrassed to have been related to that coward of a man, my ex-brother-in-law (now), Vernon.

The moral to this story is... when you see and know that your help is needed, but turn a blind eye and a deaf ear with Obama's corruption, then you reap what you sew.

And so our creator will judge you when you stand before him and beg mercy for your sins!

So, I say to the 45% who supported Kathy Taylor: You shall reap the whirlwind.

Time to ride. A wounded man of valor needs my attention. Though his uniform is a different color, compassion knows none. Mercy is the test of the Lord. And those who know the truth shall sit with the righteous!

See you on the bridge!

P.S. My mother looks down upon me and even though I have been, as I said, a bit of a rogue... she can hold her head high, as she knows I will not leave anyone to die on the side of the road, even if it means my own life. I am proud to say my two sons are of the same cut of cloth. Both Veterans.

P.S.P.S. Teach your children well!!! Teach them to know when they are being lied to and cheated... so they will make you proud.

"The purpose of life is not to be happy. It is to be useful, to be honorable, to be compassionate, to have it make some difference that you have lived and lived well." Ralph Waldo Emerson

"Love is not patronizing and charity isn't about pity, it is about love. Charity and love are the same -- with charity you give love, so don't just give money but reach out your hand instead."

Mother Teresa

The most terrifying words in the English language are: I'm from the government and I'm here to help.
